

Do You Own Your Data?

Concrete producers generate enormous amounts of data every day. As the day progresses, you add customers, mixes, materials, trucks, drivers, orders, projects, pricing, and tickets to your dispatch, batch, GPS truck tracking, and eTicketing systems.

You would think that this data belongs to you. After all, it is your stuff. As companies turn to their software vendors, they are finding more and more that rather than them, the vendor owns the data.

We came across this short piece online. This article will teach you a little bit about the ownership of data, and we wanted to share it with you:
